

This composition has a lot of different shapes occurring like triangle, rectangle or even circle.

I wanted to mess around with the textures. As you may see behind a fuzzy person a brick wall but it is brick wall?

On the ground you might get a sense of a weird sand or water feeling but then you look at it longer and you realise it's a road.

The picture of the person is my sister. She just jumped around and I took pictures of that and tried to make it look dizzy. As for the background I just overlaid the background of her image and a street picture I took when I was coming back from work. The street was empty so it was a perfect opportunity. As for the ground texture it is just small clouds. I quickly took a picture of London but the sky looked really interesting so I just cut it out and multiplied it onto the ground.

Overall I really enjoyed this week. It was challenging to find three images that would go well together into one and tell a story.

<https://fruzsinahuszar.myblog.arts.ac.uk/2021/10/02/hello-world/>